ASTRONOMY FOR SCHOOLS; By R. W. HASKINS, A. M. New-York Robinson & Pratt, 63 Wall-st.

This is a work designed especially for the use of our primary schools and academies, and it appears to us admirably liverance. alapted for this purpose. Arago's Lectures at the Royal Observatory at Paris are adopted as the basis of the treatise, which is believed by the author to ambrace all the leading principles of the science, and is yet unincumbered by the ibstruse mathematical demonstrations which have shut out previous works upon the same subject from the schools for which this is especially designed. Every one must see at suce that no thorough or satisfactory knowledge of Astronomy can be acquired without a previous acquaintance with the interesting branch of study may be treasured up, and to some extent made useful, with no more knowledge of mathematics than is embraced in common arithmetic; and it is most desirable that to this extent at least Astronomy should be pursued in our common schools. We have seen no work so well calculated to render this service to the cause of popular education as this of Mr. Haskins; and while it will not interfere at all with the more elaborate treatise of Sir John Herschell. its adoption will be of decided advantage to the primary schools throughout the land.

REVOLTING CRUELTY .- On the 2d ult. a child was found a the woods near Milan, O. so much exhausted and bitten by insects that it died in a short time. On the 11th a child was missed in Greenwich, twenty-four miles distant. Upon a strict examination it was proved that the one found was the one lost, and its mother, Mary Godfrey, with its supposed father, Jonathan Cole, have been committed to jail for trial for the inhuman murder. The wretched woman in Court, after some hesitation, recognised the child.

KENTUCKY .- The Frankfort Commonwealth states that the House of Representatives in that State will contain 77 Whigs and 23 Loco Focos, and the Senate will be composed of 29 supporters and 9 opponents of the Administration, thus giving a clear Whig Majority on joint ballot of 74.

D The Chronicle, published at Whitehall in this State, and the Freeman, at Columbus, Ohio, have hoisted the flag for Henry Clay for next President of the United States.

SUPPOSED MURDER.-Some three weeks since, Mr. W. B. Cook, Captain of a fishing-smack at Baltimore, went on a tishing expedition with several of his crew. Since that time nothing has been heard of him, though his crew returned with the vessel. One of them, a negro, named Pearson, has been acrested and committed to juil for trial for his murder.

THE BANKRUPT LAW .- Mr. Henderson, the Senator from Mississippi who introduced the bill into the Senate and carefully advanced it through the various stages, in a letter pub lished in the National Intelligencer expresses these vito the probability of future amendments, &c. :

"I venture to express the opinion from the diversified views of Members as to the details of such a bill, that no material amendment which may be suggested will succeed, if offered at the next Session. This diversity of opinion seems to originate from the perplexing nature of the power itself, as con-tained in the Constitution, and the prejudice it encounter from its palpable conflict with State laws. The power conferred is distinct and specific; and it is equally clear that Congress should exercise the power, or abandon it to the Yet, near half a century has transpired and this power has remained dormant, in despite the oft-repeated efforts of our ablest statesmen. This Congress has mounted the obstacles so long insurmountable. It has wrought much in this achievement; ought any to complain that we have not done more?

Election Nuisances .- Mr. Editor: For many years past our city has been disgraced by many of the polls at our elections being located in or next to bar-rooms, alias grogshops, through which it became necessary for voters to pas either on their entrance or exit from the premises.

tion are about being made, I wish to call the attention of those whose duty it is to designate the places at which polls shall principles and details of mathematical science; still many of the most prominent facts connected with this great and most be established, to the subject, in the hope that the evil may be amended. In no other city that I have visited does this pecially those who are infirm, are by this means kept away. The practice leads to much intersperance and riot and should henceforth be abolished. Doubtless hundreds of places may be found in each ward free from this objection.

Do, Mr. Editor, suggest to our authorities to prevent a recurrence of this abominable nuisance.

TEMPERANCE AND THE ARTS.—Mr. G.;—As you have copied an article from the Evening Post which I wrote on the subject of associating the Fine Arts with the cause of Temperance, I presume that you would have no objections to a continuance of the subject. Now the first impression to be made on the public and on the Artist too, is, that a comm cial spirit should be infused into the Arts, that profitable and praiseworthy means should be instituted to that end.

It is netorious that France, under a systematic plan, has the dominion of the world in this matter, and that the sole cause is the wise application of judicious means to the at-tainment of so grand and profitable a result. I am not one of those who believe that the tyros in painting in our city are to rival ' La belle France;' but, as France was a tyro berself nce, may we not hope that with such powerful inducements in our country we too may attain a position in this branch of art and industry as creditable to our character as it is congenial to our tastes and feelings.

Should it be alleged that the project would be likely to turn out unprofitable, and that the general ill success in a pecuniary point of view, which has ever been the concomi-tant of the artist, is sufficient proof, I answer that this opinion is of no weight, inasmuch as it is derived from premises which it is our design to subvert. To capitalists we would say that they cannot look on the vast amount of talent and est War and was condemned and laid up last season, for a material employed in the arts without perceiving the neces-
